

Self-sufficient solar lights are completely independent from the conventional power grid, and thus well prepared to secure emergency exits in a complete power failure.

The lighting of escape routes must always be on standby in case of an emergency.

A remote maintenance and the intelligent electronics will switch on the lights automatically when needed.